

General condition of sales for a catalogue

Moodle Shop structure documentation

Structure information

Every sales initiative must specifically inform the customer of the seller's commitment and the customer's rights and obligations.

The Moodle shop can establish conditions of sale by aggregating the general conditions of sale attached to a shop instance, as well as conditions specific to each product purchased from the catalogue.

Conditions of sale are dynamically assembled when the order is taken and presented to the customer before the order confirmation stage. The user must tick a specific box to be able to preview their order and continue to the payment phase. Because the order is permanently recorded via payment screen inputs, the existence of a formal record of the order implies acceptance of the conditions of sale.

Moodle shop general conditions of sale interface:

The screenshot shows a web form titled 'Conditions générales de ventes'. At the top, a purple heading reads 'Conditions générales de ventes'. Below it, a bold notice states: 'Vous devez prendre connaissance et accepter les conditions de vente suivantes avant de procéder à un achat sur Sumatra Formation Conseil. La validation de ce formulaire vaut pour l'acceptation de ces conditions.' The main content area contains several sections of text, each starting with a small heading: '12.4 Tolérance', '12.5 Droit de propriété intellectuelle', '12.6 Informatique et liberté', and '12.7. LOI APPLICABLE - ATTRIBUTION DE JURIDICTION'. At the bottom of the form, there is a checkbox labeled 'J'accepte les conditions de ventes' and a 'Confirmer' button.
